USLT 202: Introduction to U.S. Latina/o Studies: A Contemporary Overview, 1960s-present

Instructor: Ana Patricia Rodriguez, Dept. of Spanish and Portuguese, aprodrig@umd.edu
Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 2:00-2:50 p.m., HBK 0105.

Course Description: This interdisciplinary course examines the emerging populations of Latinas/os in the 20th Century U.S. with a focus on multiple waves of Latino immigration as a result of colonialism, imperialism, globalization, and community-based social movements. At the end of the semester, students will produce an individual project on any aspect of Latinas/os in the U.S. and/or Greater Washington, D.C. Metro Area.

USLT 488: Senior Seminar: Visual Research Methods in U.S. Latina/o Studies

Instructor: Robb Hernandez, Dept. of American Studies, robbher3@umd.edu
Tuesday and Thursday, 9:30-10:45 a.m., PLS 1172.

Course Description: This course will be an intensive study of theoretical debates of "the visual" in U.S. Latina/o studies. Students will examine Latina/o visual culture methods in a range of genre, media, and aesthetic practices. We will ultimately discern how sight shapes cultural and social meanings of Latinas/os and how U.S. Latina/o media activists crafted resistant images to contest social inequality.
